Arrange pear halves over beans. Combine reserved pear syrup, 2 tablespoons brown sugar and mustard drizzle over pears. Bake at 350° F. 20 to 25 minutes o until piping hot. Makes 4 servings.

New school finds basics mesh with modern technology

The new business school in downtown Scranton and Honesdale, the Northeast Institute of Education, is combining a "back to basics" approach with the most modern technology and the students are responding in a most positive way.

When interviewing a prospective student, Northeast Institute emphasizes that it is training people to enter the world of business. This orientation to what businesses expect from employes and a clear understanding that we expect it he same. A dress code calling for students to dress in a business-like manner, an attendance code, insisting that students learn to appreciate the demands for both punctuality and regular attendance made by their prospective employers, and mandated work experienced as part of their graduation requirements assures students, parents and, most of all, the employers of Northeastern Pennsylvania that Northeast graduates know how to work, how to act, and what is expected of them as employes."

Ten month programs are available in executive secretarial, accounting, and business expect arial, accounting, and business extraining, assuring successful contention. Each student is tested to determine interest, ability and aptitude for business training, assuring successful completion of the program chosen.

The courses are practical and contribuate directly to the skills needed for employers. The faculty have been chosen for their credentials and ability to work with people of varying age groups.
